Thanks for clarifying. I think links to the existing sites makes sense.

To be clear: I'm not arguing for a fully-developed EPA web page.

But it does seem likely that people would come to epa.gov, so I'd like to have some way of getting them wherever we think best, like FEMA or the state.

So I would recommend putting up a banner with links. I'd also put up a very simple page that just gives the links to help people who Google us and don't see the EPA home page. I wouldn't even link to it from our banner; it'd just be there to help people who search and don't see the banner.

Alisha:

Because the state is the lead do you prefer that we not have a webpage?
